

Henry Ford an inventor, businessman, and a Freemason achieved the role of benefactor of humanity through his innovative practices and endeavours. Ford was initiated into Palestine Lodge No. 357 and was raised to the Degree of Master Mason in 1894. He kept up a Masonic career throughout his lifetime, no easy feat when his many accomplishments and innovations are considered. Revolutionizing production by applying the principle of the assembly line to car manufacturing.

Henry Ford could have simply pocketed the lion's share of the profits from his revolution. Instead, he doubled the wages for his workers, cut the cost of his car, and instituted a five-day work week. His reshaping of the auto industry not only improved the conditions for his workers it revolutionized the practice of capitalism globally.
